NM EDGE Connects with New Mexicans at State Fair's NM Counties Day

NM EDGE (Education Designed to Generate Excellence in the Public Sector), a program of New Mexico State University's Cooperative Extension Service, participated in NM Counties Day at the New Mexico State Fair and connected with hundreds of New Mexicans of all ages.

New Mexico Counties Day provides an opportunity for NM EDGE to interact with community members, share information about its educational programs, and introduce visitors to the training and certification opportunities available to public service professionals.

NM EDGE's mission of "Better Government Through Education" is highlighted through its professional development and other specialized training classes designed to help public employees strengthen their knowledge and skills. Its various programs serve administrators, managers, elected officials, and staff working in county, municipal, tribal and state government, as well as other individuals interested in developing these skills.

Established through a partnership between NMSU Cooperative Extension Service and the New Mexico Association of Counties, NM EDGE has developed educational opportunities to support the professional growth of New Mexico's public workforce. Its certification programs cover areas such as public management, public finance, purchasing, human resources, and other specialized fields.

By participating in NM Counties Day, NM EDGE can share these opportunities with a broader audience and help visitors learn how education and professional development can support them. This event also provides an opportunity to introduce families and younger visitors to the important role public service plays in the community.

NM EDGE encourages public service employees and community members interested in professional development to explore its available programs, class offerings, and certification pathways.
